

Apex Cityhomes - two new Developments in Calgary, Alberta

Apex Cityhomes has announced the development of two new apartment condominium projects in The City of Calgary's inner-city neighbourhood of Bridgeland. The two buildings are to include up to 270 residences and will include ground floor commercial elements as well.

Architect Tom Staniszki has begun the design and development process for the two projects, with construction anticipated to begin in 2008.

The buildings seek to present individual expressions relative to their positioning within the overall Bridgeland neighbourhood, as well as in relation to each other. Being closer to the older surrounding neighbourhood the buildings will be warmer and have a more traditional character that is derived from the grain found there. Materials, fenestration patterning and details are reminiscent of a somewhat older era. Lights and signage will be more "craftsman" in nature and overall the buildings will offer up a more traditional less contemporary language.

Apex Cityhomes is pleased to be a part of, and to contribute towards, this award-winning community.
